

Golden Globes: Complete Coverage!

#917 • JANUARY 26, 2007

Entertainment WEEKLY

EDDIE MURPHY

HOW HE GOT HIS GROOVE BACK

From SNL to DREAMGIRLS: The Wild Ride Of a Reclusive Superstar

By Josh Rottenberg

+
The 25
Most Shameless, Money Grubbing Movie Roles Ever

Inside The Globes

- > The Glamour
- > The Scene Backstage
- > What It All Means For Oscar

www.ew.com (AOL Keyword: EW)

$3.50 (CAN. $4.50)

Grey's gals Katherine Heigl, Ellen Pompeo, Sara Ramirez, Chandra Wilson, Kate Walsh, and Sandra Oh; (below) winners Scorsese and Streep behind us, so I was like, 'Okay, I got a shot!'" House star Hugh Laurie was also in a chipper mood, probably because he bucked the Globes' love-you-one-year, forget-you-the-next trend with his second consecutive win for best actor in a TV drama. "I was told I didn't have to worry," Laurie said. "I was almost promised, 'It can't happen! Relax!' And frankly, I was too relaxed and unprepared. I can't even remember what I said."

The crew from Grey's Anatomy, however, gave new meaning to the phrase "TV drama" after winning its best-series award. "This has been a trying year, to say the least," star Patrick Dempsey told EW after the win. "But this is a sweet award because it's all of us together." Not for long: In the press room, the cast was asked a question about the now-infamous dustup last fall involving Dempsey, Isaiah Washington, and T.R. Knight. Washington swiftly approached the microphone and announced, "No, I did not call T.R. a faggot—never happened," while the rest of the cast stood by, stone-faced. (More weirdness: Moments later, before starting one televised all-cast chat backstage, Katherine Heigl abruptly left.)

BUTT SERIOUSLY, FOLKS...

Easily the night's funniest speech? Sacha Baron Cohen's sidesplitting ode to his Borat costar/nude wrestling partner Davitian's nether regions. After delivering the hysterically interminable shout-out ("When...I stared down and saw your two wrinkled golden globes on my chin, I thought to myself, 'I better win a bloody award for this!'", he strutted straight to Davitian's table and said, "I told you I would mention you." Asked afterward what he thought of Baron Cohen's graphically expansive speech, Davitian replied, "I was elated. My ass has been immortalized." ■ (Additional reporting by Lynette Rice and Adam B. Vary)

HITLIST

By Scott Brown

1 Ringo Starr's childhood home may be spared Despite the fact that it's considered to be the least-talented childhood home.

2 Paula Abdul reps blame technical difficulties for her bizarre on-air behavior I buy it. I once went on a three-day technical difficulty that ended in cancellation.

3 Heather Locklear says she still likes rock stars And I still like Steak-umms. No lesson here: Just greasy goodness.

4 Britney Spears dates K-Fed look-alike A wise man once said, "Don't change horses in mid-skeev." That wise man was Loni Anderson.

5 "Commandos" panty-free crotch patch launched on tide of celeb "up-skirts" Two, please. For my eyes.

6 Kanye West gets unscripted TV show It's Kanye going about his daily routine, as Mike Myers stands awkwardly beside him.

7 Zach Braff doesn't "play the game" and is "in sweat pants every day" It's like he found my letters and read each one out loud.

8 Penélope Cruz laughs off Salma Hayek gay rumors I'm laughing too! But on a serious note: Please let it be true.

9 David Beckham moves to L.A. He and Posh were drawn by the good schools, picturesque nannies, and natural collagen springs.

10 Richard Gere chants "No condom, no sex" with Mumbai prostitutes Roger Ebert called the sex ed. event "Pretty Woman" with a hint of curry!" and "Creepy!"

For the latest headlines, pictures, and ridiculous Hollywood miscellany, visit popwatch.ew.com